GOLDEN DEAL

Cooperative-Competition

Introduction

Golden Deal uses the concept of collaborative competition between teams to emphasize the importance of team interdependence. In order to win this game, each team must rely on cooperation with others to exchange information and resources. Therefore, the team strives to be the best, while maintaining a good working relationship with other groups

How it works

Teams representing fictional countries must cooperate in trading coins and information while competing for the most valuable combination of coins.

When to use it

This game is a flexible, team-based event that leverages rich interpersonal and team processing skills. We particularly like to use it as part of a negotiation and strategic planning workshop. But it is an ideal choice for a variety of training topics, and it demonstrates the value of collaborative competition in times of change.
